M. DE LESSEPS DEAD

The Great Frenchman of Suez
Fame Called Home.

A REMARKABLE CAREER ENDED.

His Life of Nearly Ninety Years Had Its Rise, Its High Noon, Its Mellowed Afternoon, Its Heavy Cloud, Its Sunset and Its Midnight—Biographical Sketch of the Leading Events.

PARIS, Dec. 8.—Count Ferdinand De Lesseps died yesterday at La Chaux-de-Fonds, near Vatan, in the department of l'Indre. During the night he received the last sacrament.

VICE-ADMIRAL FERDINAND DE LESSEPS.

The life of Ferdinand De Lesseps, which has just closed in a manner so pathetic as to partake almost of tragedy, had its rise, its high noon, its mellowed afternoon, its heavy cloud, its sunset and its midnight. The Paris correspondent of a large American newspaper syndicate, under date of Jan. 29, 1855, wrote: "The most popular man in France today is unquestionably Ferdinand De Lesseps. This is due to several causes. In the first place, his life work—the stupendous Suez conception—has been a most brilliant success. The world, which has not even one word of sympathy for him who fails, is ready to prostrate itself before him who triumphs. But this worship of the 'great Frenchman,' as M. De Lesseps is now generally called, is to be attributed more to the admirable traits of character of the man himself than to the merit of what he has done."

And yet but eight years later, or Feb. 9, 1863, this same Ferdinand De Lesseps, who had been for years the idol of the French people, was sentenced to imprisonment for five years for the part he played in connection with the Panama canal loans. The unfortunate old man, stricken by the disgrace which had come upon him like a thunderbolt from a clear sky, and borne down by the weight of fourscore years and eight, gave way beneath the blow.

Viscount Ferdinand De Lesseps, G. C. S. I., was born at Vassallos, France, Nov. 19, 1805. In 1828 he entered the diplomatic service as an attaché of the consulate at Lisbon, and subsequently served in like positions elsewhere. He was consul at Barcelona in 1842 when that city was bombarded, and was zealous in the protection of the lives and property of French citizens and afforded an asylum to Spaniards on board the vessels of the French fleet. He was among the first to urge the expediency of constructing a canal across the Isthmus of Suez, connecting the Mediterranean with the Red sea. After unrelenting effort for many years he obtained a firman from Said Pasha in 1854, and enlisting French and English capitalists undertook the work, which was vigorously prosecuted to completion despite many obstacles that would have discouraged a less resolute man.

The viceroy of Egypt granted a concession in 1856. The practicability of the project was questioned by many of the most eminent engineers of the world, and he was ridiculed all over Europe, and especially by English engineers. The work was begun in 1859. It soon commanded the attention of various governments, which subscribed liberally to the undertaking as the work progressed and its practicability became assured. The Turkish government tendered substantial help, but this was construed as an attempt to strengthen the political power of the porto in Egypt and was resisted by the other powers interested, principally Great Britain and France. Work was suspended for a time on account of these complications, but finally the matter was submitted to arbitration and satisfactorily adjusted.

A canal of sufficient depth to admit of the passage of small steam vessels was opened Aug. 15, 1865, and by degrees the channel was deepened and enlarged so that small ships and steamers were enabled to pass through in March, 1867.

Aug. 15, 1869, the waters of the Mediterranean mingled with those of the Red sea, and the formal opening of the canal was celebrated with great pomp and rejoicing at Suez, and on Nov. 18 the canal was formally opened to Port Said. Representatives of all the principal governments of Europe were present on this occasion, and the fetes were among the most imposing ever witnessed in modern times. A grand processional fleet, consisting of 40 vessels, successfully made the passage from Port Said to Ismailia.

A few days after this event M. De Lesseps married Mlle. Antard de Bragard, a young creole of English extraction and considerable wealth. He received honorable decorations from nearly every government of Europe. Queen Victoria's gift was his nomination of an honorary knight grand commander of the Order of the Star of India. The freedom of the city of London was also presented to him. In 1873 he was chosen a free member of the French academy. He published a history of the canal in 1875. In 1881 he was elected president of the French Geographical Society. The English government endeavored to secure his services in cutting a second canal, but the negotiations fell through owing to opposition in the house of commons and the subsequent absorption of English capitalists of a controlling interest in the existing canal.

Turning his attention to the new world, M. De Lesseps undertook the construction of the canal across the Isthmus of Panama. The original capital of the company, 600,000,000 francs, was exhausted, when the subscribers refused to advance more money, and the enterprise was abandoned. De Lesseps' private fortune was also absorbed in the undertaking, and he was left comparatively poor. He continued his efforts to procure means with which to prosecute the work, but capital was timid, and he was unable to procure the necessary assistance.

Then came the report of fraud in connection with the Panama canal loan and lottery schemes. At first it was a murmur, it became a rumble which developed into a roar when Deronledo committed suicide and the damning revelations against prominent Frenchmen were published. The storm shivered honored names and tore exalted reputations to tatters in its fury, which culminated when the aged De Lesseps stood with bent shoulders, moist eyes and quivering chin and heard the presiding magistrate pronounce the words which consigned him to a prison cell for five years. De Lesseps was stunned. The sentence had destroyed his desire to live, and thenceforward up to the time of his death life was to him but a series of mechanical processes. De Lesseps had experienced the exaltation of honors; he also felt the hopeless despair of disgrace.

SHOT BY WHITE CAPS.

A Man Killed in the Presence of His Wife and Five Children.

SPRINGFIELD, Ky., Dec. 8.—Two masked men forced an entrance into the home of Thomas Edgington between 12 and 1 o'clock yesterday morning, and in the presence of his wife and five children shot him dead. Edgington jumped out of bed when he discovered the men and was grabbed by one of them while the other put a bullet in his brain.

Edgington has been anonymously warned several times by White Caps about abusing his family. It is thought that the White Caps' intention was to give Edgington a severe thrashing, but upon meeting with resistance, they killed him for fear of being recognized. There is no clue whatever to the perpetrators of the deed. Officers are making every effort to apprehend the guilty parties.

Treasury Statement.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—The cash balance in the treasury yesterday was $156,415,337; net gold $110,007,502. This increase in the gold was due to the deposit of $1,500,000 in the subtreasury at San Francisco on account of bond purchases, a report of which reached here yesterday. Advices from New York, however, state that engagements for gold for export at the subtreasury, as heretofore reported, amount to $2,250,000, which leaves the true amount of the net gold balance $107,857,562. With sterling exchange strong at a trifle higher figure than Thursday further exports are looked for.

Painters and Decorators' Platform.

CLEVELAND, Dec. 8.—The painters and decorators' convention adopted a platform calling for compulsory education, direct legislation, a legal eight-hour work day, sanitary inspection of workshops, mills and homes; liability of employers for injury to health, body and life; abolition of the contract system; municipal ownership of streetcars, gas and electric light plants for public distribution; nationalization of telegraphs, telephones, railroads and mines.

Cole Younger to Be Released.

ST. JOSEPH, Dec. 8.—Information has been received here that Cole Younger, the notorious outlaw, who for over 10 years has been an inmate of the Minnesota penitentiary at Stillwater, where he is serving a life sentence for complicity in the Northfield bank robbery, will be released Jan. 1 next. He has been very sick since his incarceration.

Fifty Cents on the Dollar.

HENDERSON, Ky., Dec. 8.—Shelby & Seaper, proprietors of the Henderson hominy mill, assigned yesterday. The liabilities are estimated at between $80,000 and $90,000, and it is hardly thought the two estates will pay over 50 cents on the dollar of the indebtedness. The mill is one of the largest and best equipped in the country.

Acquitted.

RICHMOND, Ind., Dec. 8.—Charles Rowan, the city marshal of Centerville, who shot and killed Rufus Brunfield of this city, while the last named was resisting arrest for disorderly conduct, was acquitted by the jury trying the case, a verdict being returned yesterday. Rowan was indicted for murder.

Senator Plumb's Estate Attacked.

DENVER, Dec. 8.—Ex-United States Senator Stephen W. Dorsey has brought suit in the district court against the heirs of the late Senator Plumb of Kansas to compel them to place the title of the Chicago mine in Clear Creek county in the name of the plaintiff. Dorsey said he advanced the money to purchase the property, and until recently supposed that he was the undisputed owner. He came to the United States in

FURTHER OUTRAGES.

The Turks Continue to Murder the Armenians.

THE STORY OF AN EYE-WITNESS.

A Town of Twelve Hundred Houses Set on Fire by Turkish Soldiers and Entirely Destroyed—Archbishop Nigohos Seized and Taken to Smyrna in Chains—His Fate is at Present Unknown.

ATHENS, Dec. 8.—A further story of outrage by Turks has been told here by an eye-witness of the occurrence. An Armenian has just arrived in this city from Hadjin, an Armenian town, from which place he escaped shortly after the outrage was perpetrated. Hadjin is, or rather was, a town of 1,200 wooden houses, situated near Marash. The refugee states that on the night of Oct. 23 four Turkish officers and two gendarmes set fire to the town, using petroleum to cause the more rapid spread of the flames.

An Armenian named Merdakian Garabed, with his mother, witnessed the incendiaries at their work, an cried for help. A Turkish official, who was appealed to to send aid to extinguish the fire, refused to permit any assistance. Garabed was seized by order of the officials and thrown into prison. Three days later Garabed was killed, and his body was thrown into the ruins of his burned house.

Two refugees have also arrived here from Zeitun. They state that Turkish troops seized Archbishop Nigohos in the monastery of Fourout, near Zeitun, together with 11 residents of the village of Zeitun. All the prisoners were taken in chains to Smyrna, 11 days ago. Their fate is unknown.

WILL ACT INDEPENDENTLY.

An American Will Accompany the Turkish Commission of Inquiry.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—President Cleveland has reconsidered his original intention and decided to send an American delegate with the Turkish commission to inquire into the Armenian outrages.

Until very recently the department has been much in the dark officially as to the Armenian troubles, but at last information was received that warrant action and this has been as announced.

The course pursued by the United States has been marked by great prudence and a desire to refrain as far as possible from the dictates of humanity would permit from any entanglement in European politics.

As the signatory powers of the Berlin treaty at the close of the Turco-Russian war had bound themselves to look after the welfare of Christians in Turkey, it would have been an unwarranted interference by the United States in the affairs of those countries had we taken any steps, without solicitation from one or more of these powers beyond caring for the interests of United States citizens in Turkey. So when Turkey requested United States Minister Terrell to name a member of the commission of inquiry, the request was for political reasons, declined.

Turkey had naturally turned first to the United States as the only Christian power whose conclusions would be likely to carry weight with the Christian world, upon whose absolute disinterestedness she could rely. The great Christian nations of Europe were all under suspicion of having designs upon Turkish integrity, yet it was necessary, in order to stem the tide of rising indignation, to place a Christian on the commission of inquiry if its findings were to be conclusive upon Europe.

The United States having declined to join in the commission, however, the porte was obliged to yield to the extent of permitting the European governments to name commissioners. Up to this point the government had been in doubt as to the reality of the reported outrages. The Turkish government had declared positively that the Armenian affair was nothing but a rebellion, and that it had been suppressed in a legitimate manner. There had been a battle, some 60 or 70 Turkish soldiers had been killed, and the rebels had lost about 500 or 600 men.

But at this juncture came reports from trusted agents discrediting the official reports of the Turkish government, and affording reason for the belief that the Armenians had been terribly outraged. Then Great Britain appealed to the United States in the interest of absolute justice, and to ensure a report above suspicion and beyond contravention by the Turks themselves, to appoint a member of the commission of inquiry.

This appeal turned the tide and induced the president to reconsider his first decision. But to avoid an appearance of entanglement of other powers which might result in the end in making the United States an active party to a controversy with which it is contended it had properly nothing to do, he decided that the American representative should, while accompanying the commission, act with absolute independence, should hear and see what he could in Armenia, and instead of joining in the conclusions of the commission, to appoint a member of the commission of inquiry.

Probably because of his nearness to the scene of the trouble and also his antecedents, Milo A. Jewett, United States consul at Sivas, was selected to act as the representative of the United States in making the investigation. Mr. Jewett was born in Sivas, Turkey, of American parents, his father being a missionary. He came to the United States in his youth and was educated in Massachusetts. He became a physician and was for about 11 years attached to the Danbury insane asylum. He was appointed consul to Sivas by President Harrison in 1892, and is regarded as particularly fitted for the inquiry with which he is charged.

REVIEW OF TRADE.

R. G. Dunn & Company's Report on the Condition of Business.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—R. G. Dunn & Company's review of trade says: It is difficult to detect any change in current business. Prospects for business after Christmas are quite generally considered more hopeful.

The meeting of congress, the announcement of the new currency plan and of various bills proposed have not affected the situation perceptibly. On the whole agricultural products are scarcely strong and wages of labor do not advance, but there is reason to expect the employment of a somewhat larger working force after the holidays.

The expected government report on feeding of wheat to cattle and hogs has scarcely influenced the market. The receipts of wheat are larger than a year ago and the exports smaller, but foreign accounts, particularly as to the Argentine crop, have helped an advance of 1 1/4 cents. Estimates of the winter wheat acreage indicate an increase of 1 1/4 per cent, with a condition somewhat better than last year.

Although corn receipts have been much larger than a year ago, and exports not one-sixth as large, the price has changed but little. Cotton has fallen again to 5 3/4 cents, very close to the lowest point for many years, and actual receipts from plantations are larger to date than in 1891, when the crop was over 9,000,000 bales. Neither abroad nor here are there indications of more than an average consumption.

The iron industry seems to have distinctly brighter prospects at Chicago. But Bessemer iron has sold at $10.25 at Pittsburgh, steel rails have been reduced to $22 there, and wire rods and nails are weaker. Comparison of prices there and at the east shows the lowest average yet recorded. Taking prices of October, 1890, an 100 quotations have fallen to 55.7, and are so far shaded that substantially half the price has been cut off within four years. Southern works are offering iron here and New England at low figures, and the competition leaves scarcely any profit. London speculation has depressed tin to 13 1/2 cents, and copper is in only moderate demand at 9 1/2 cents for lake. Domestic lead is a shade stronger.

The wool manufacture has been doing 3 per cent more than last year but 31 per cent less than in 1892, and the average of 104 qualities of wool quoted by Coates Brothers is 14.79 cents, the lowest ever known. Manufacturers are receiving more orders and much confidence is expressed that they will be able to continue production at about the present rate after Jan. 1.

The failures this week have been 385 in the United States against 385 last year, and 40 in Canada against 42 last year.

UTE OUTBREAK.

Several Hundred of Them Outside of Their Colorado Home.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—The secretary of the interior has directed General Day of the Southern Ute Agency in Colorado, to proceed to the section of Utah invaded by the Colorado Utes and endeavor to persuade them to return to their reservation. There are several hundred of the dissatisfied Indians now in Utah, and the effort to induce them to go back to their Colorado home is expected to prove a difficult matter.

The commissioner of Indian affairs received yesterday an official report of the invasion. It consists of a detailed account of the journey of the Utes to San Juan and vicinity, across the border line of Colorado, and the trouble with the people there, but does not differ from the reports already made public.

WILL Proceed Against the Indians.

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo., Dec. 8.—Eleven boxes of arms have been received at Thompsons, U. T., shipped by Governor West. The settlers propose to move against the Indians in San Juan county, and drive them back over the Colorado line. This plan if carried out will cause serious trouble.

RESULT OF A PITCHED BATTLE.

Two Killed, One Maimed For Life and Two Badly Wounded.

GUTHRIE, O. T., Dec. 8.—Two killed, one maimed for life and two badly wounded is the result of a pitched battle fought between Alva and Eagle and started by a number of rowdies. James Brown, Frank Brown, J. B. Knight, Charles Kitchen, Sam Westcott and a man called One Eye Taylor, while coming home drunk, met Sam Crocker, a deputy marshal, and three rangers en route to Alva.

Without provocation or a moment's warning the drunken men opened fire on the other party. A general fusillade followed. Kitchen and James Brown were killed outright. Westcott had his legs shattered and Taylor, the deputy marshal and one of the rangers were seriously wounded.

What the Army Is Doing.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—The army rolls will lose some unique names if the army itself does not lose good soldiers by the steady discharge of enlisted Indians. In one such order issued recently were the following names: Twin, David Bigman, John Squinteye, Big Back, Black Crane, Little Head, Big Boy, George Halfont, Good Boy, In-the-Camp, Louis Satlingeye, Magpie, Job Lofstrand.

After the Train Robbers.

MYSTERIOUS MURDER

A Chicago Man Hacked to Pieces With an Ax.

THRUST INTO A PACKING CASE.

It is Then Secreted Beneath the Sidewalk. He Was the Janitor of the Hiawatha Building in the Basement of Which the Murder Occurred. No Clew to the Murder, CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—The dead body of A. D. Barnes, janitor of the Hiawatha building, at 258 Thirty-seventh street, was found yesterday morning jammed into a packing case which had been thrust into a hole beneath the sidewalk on South Park avenue, between Sixty-third and Sixty-fourth streets.

The body, which was naked with the exception of a pair of socks, bore over a score of ugly wounds, half of them sufficient to cause death, even if the man had sustained no further injury than the one blow. The wounds had evidently been inflicted with both the cutting edge and the blunt side of an ax and covered the body from the right temple down to the knees.

Two men are in custody charged with the crime, Edward Jordan, the assistant janitor, and Lewis Jersey, a man of no occupation.

The crime was unquestionably committed in the basement of the house, as the police discovered there late yesterday afternoon the clothes worn by Barnes when last seen alive, and the blood-stained ax. Signs of a struggle were plainly visible, showing that Barnes must have made a hard fight.

No other motive than that of robbery is ascribed for the crime, for Barnes as far as known had no enemies, and a watch and $30 in money, which he had on his person when last seen, are missing. The police are also looking for Annie Mahaney, a girl with whom Barnes was at one time very intimate. There is no especial clew leading up to her, however.

The sugar trust put up the cry a few days ago that it would have to close its refineries and throw 50,000 workingmen out of employment because the business wasn't paying. But since then it has declared the usual quarterly dividend on its millions of dollars of watered stock.

Ohio, the home of McKinleyism, is in a worse shape, financially, than Kentucky, but our Republican friends have nothing to say about Ohio's empty treasury.—Flemingsburg Times-Democrat.

The Democratic Senators have declared in favor of the election of United States Senators by direct vote of the people. The election of Senators by direct vote would unquestionably give the country a Senate that would legislate more in the interests of the masses and not so much in the interest of the millionaires.

A CARD FROM MR. KIRK.

There Are Always Two Sides to Every Case, and the County Jailer Gives His in Plain Words.

Editor Bulletin: In reply to the card of the city officials of the 7th inst., (published in the Ledger), I will say that on the morning after the prisoners were released and after my card was published, I asked Mayor Cox if he did not think I had been unjustly treated. The substance of his answer was that I had laid myself open for a newspaper attack, which I, accordingly, received on the 7th inst.—milder in tone than I expected. The witnesses on whose testimony they sought to convict me of inhumanity were Charles Warner, (colored), late of the Frankfort penitentiary; Hord Loughridge, (colored), having been indicted for highway robbery and not unknown to the criminal and city courts, and William Dickson, who was indicted for grand larceny. The above named witnesses charge that they were insufficiently fed, and Brother Cox, with the other officers, evidently believed them. I want to state truthfully, if I know how, that the prisoners were abundantly supplied with boiled sides and one pint of bean soup and beans each, and each one half loaf of bread on the day they complained.

Tom Davis could have made a display of the balance of county jail men had he given the prisoners an enema. Probably the balance of the menu would have been too dirty for Tom Davis' office, although he might have disinfected it and put it in a "sanitary condition." The public knows the Ledger doesn't want to prosecute me.

It seems to me that the charge of inhumanity to prisoners comes with poor grace from officials who are as guilty as the ones who published card in the public Ledger. I will give some instances of inhuman treatment coming from said city officials; they can tell you whether true or not.

On last April Dart Holliday was flogged and committed to jail. James Molen, city guard, informed him that he would have to put shackles on him. Holliday told Molen that he would go to the works if he would not shackle him, as he did not like to go through a town where he was raised with iron on. Molen reported to city authorities and they ordered Holliday put in the dungeon, and kept him there on bread and water for eight days.

On last June the world renowned shacklers, Frank Brown and Charles Smith, were put in the dungeon for refusing to let Molen shackle them as they had shackled him in the quarry. The good people of Maysville came to their rescue, paid their fines and took them out of the dungeon.

On the night of November 8th Gibbons Alexander, a boy about seventeen years old, was put in the dungeon and would have staid there all night had he not gone and got Purnell to come and take him out.

Yet the officials in their card on the 7th, say: "If the parties in authority have erred in this matter, they have the satisfaction of feeling that it has been on the side of mercy and sympathetic regard for human creature's lives and health."

I saw the Chief of Police jam a man's face against the bars for giving him some back talk, after he was inside the jail, and the fellow bled like a hog that had been stuck. These facts I can substantiate by reputable witnesses. Brother Mayor, take off your garb or cease to judge. You know the class and kind of witnesses that helped you to render your verdict against me. Pause at these observations on public government: "Scornful men bring a city into a snare, but wise men turn away wrath." "If a ruler hearken to lies, all his servants are wicked." "When the wicked are multiplied, transgression increaseth, but the righteous shall see their fall." Respectfully,

ROBERT C. KIRK,
Jailer Mason County.

SENSATIONAL CLAIM

That the Kentucky Election Law Is Unconstitutional—Louisville Attorneys Attack It.

Louisville, Dec. 5.—Messrs. Dulaney and Alexander this morning appeared before Judge Jackson in the Criminal Court and attacked the constitutionality of the election law.

The claim that the election law, or part of it, is unconstitutional is based on the fact that at its final passage it did not receive a yea-and-nay vote. As authority for this stand the attorneys will cite the decision of the Court of Appeals in the World's Fair case.

The Kentucky Board of Managers of the World's Fair brought suit to compel Auditor Norman to pay over to them the appropriation made by the Legislature. The Auditor had refused to pay the amount on the ground that the act authorizing the appropriation had never become a law for the reason that at its final passage it was not adopted by a yea-and-nay vote.

The Court of Appeals held, Judge Holt delivering the opinion and Judge Bennett and Lewis concurring, that, under Section 46 of the Constitution, no bill could become a law unless voted for by two-fifths of the members of the General Assembly, and that it must be recorded by aye-and-no vote and entered in the journal.

The House amended the World's Fair bill and it went back to the Senate for concurrence. That body accepted the amendments viva voce. The Court of Appeals held that a yea-and-nay vote should have been taken, the bill having been up by reason of the amendment for final adoption as a whole.

In the election law passed in the Senate the House added more than twenty amendments. The bill was sent back to the Senate as amended and concurred in, but the bill never had a final passage in the meaning of Section 46 of the Constitution, so Messrs. Dulaney and Alexander claim, under the construction of the Court of Appeals.

After the Governor had vetoed the Revenue and Corporation bill, the present Chief Justice, Quigley, reintroduced the Election bill in the House and it was indefinitely postponed. Judge Quigley at that time, so Dulaney and Alexander hold, felt that the present election law was not passed in accordance with the provisions of Section 46 of the Constitution.

A Former Maysvillian Wins One of Winchester's Most Charming Ladies For His Bride.

Winchester Sun: "The marriage of Mr. James H. Martin, the popular young druggist, and Miss Addie Lee Gordon, one of the most charming young ladies of this city, took place at the Baptist Church last Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The ceremony was performed by the pastor of the church, Rev. B. B. Bailey. Professor R. de Roode presided at the organ.

As the bridal party were entering, the church resounded to the stately measures of the wedding march from the opera Lohengrin, and while the pastor spoke the words that united two pure young hearts, the sweet, low notes of an air from Martha: "Ah! so fair, stood she there," were heard. While the party were leaving the church, the organist played Mendelssohn's wedding march.

"The bride wore a lovely white satin dress with chiffon waist. The bridesmaids, Miss Katharine Gaines, of Eminence, and Miss Ella Gordon, of this county, wore dresses of muslin de soi. Messrs. Harry S. Wood, of Maysville, and Charles W. Parrish, were the groom's attendants. The ushers were R. B. Jouett, J. R. Martin, J. M. Wheeler, W. S. Massie, Walter and Wallace Strode.

"The bridal party took tea at the residence of the bride's mother, after which they drove to Lexington. Mr. and Mrs. Martin will visit Chattanooga, New Orleans and other points in the South. The Sun wishes them the greatest measure of happiness."

The bridegroom is the only son of Mrs. Mary Martin, of Forest avenue.

The man who wants to do business these days has to hustle for it, but if he hustles in person he finds it difficult—exceedingly difficult—to be in more than one place at a time. He's not built that way! But an advertisement in a daily paper often talks for him, and sometimes to better purpose, in a thousand places at once.

BURBRIDGE.

The Last of a Man Who Was Bitterly Hated For His Conduct as a Soldier.

Brief mention was made yesterday of the death, a few days ago at Brooklyn, of General Stephen G. Burbridge, who commanded the department of Kentucky for some time during the war. He was guilty of acts while thus engaged which, the Courier-Journal says, his friends defended as necessary severity, but which others, even among those who fought for the same cause, stigmatized as outrages on the name of humanity. It seems to have been a prime object with General Burbridge to put down guerrilla warfare in this State, and it was charged that he made it a practice to further this object by noting the places where depredations attended with loss of life had been committed by the guerrillas and there shooting number of Confederate prisoners of war equal to that of the lives sacrificed by the guerrillas.

Forty-two of Morgan's men were one day captured at Greensburg, and thirty-eight of these were taken to Brandenburg and shot to death under Burbridge's orders. One Federal soldier had been killed there by guerrillas.

One of the victims of these outrages was young Hunt, of this city, who with some companions, was put to death at Midway.

The Courier-Journal says: "After the war Burbridge was denounced by some men who fought on the Northern side, as well as by those who fought on the Southern side. Colonel R. M. Kelly, of Louisville, once came very near fighting a duel with him, but the affair was pacifically ended by the interposition of mutual friends. Thomas M. Green, a stanch Union man, accused him, in the columns of the Cincinnati Commercial, of having hanged three men merely because they were known to have enlisted in the Confederate army, and with having issued his famous 'Hog Order' for the financial advantage of a brother who carried on business in Maysville. The following is a copy of this famous order:

"LEXINGTON, KY., November 1, 1864.
"Colonel T. B. Fairley, Louisville, Ky.—Have the order asked for by Major Symonds published in all the papers, that no more hogs be shipped out of the State until further orders.

"S. J. BURBRIDGE, Major General."
"Captain James Blackburn accused him of having held a prisoner of war to ransom. To all these strictures Burbridge replied in a lengthy address to his 'fellow Kentuckians,' which was published in the Cincinnati Commercial. In his address he is at much pains to prove the reality of the evil of brigandage, which his severities were designed to suppress, but is not clearly successful in identifying the peculiarly grim means selected by him, and at the conclusion he weakens his whole plea by asserting that one finger of any Kentuckian that drew a trigger for the Union was worth the lives of any four who fought against it."

The Lexington Transcript says: "Capt. Pete Everett, now in the Lexington Insane Asylum, who commanded a company of Confederate Cavalry raised in Montgomery County, and who was a most daring and active soldier, made several attempts to capture Burbridge. In one of these he stopped and burned a train a few miles north of Cynthiana. He had intelligence that Burbridge would be on the train, but by chance he was not. There was an intense desire to capture him, but he was never taken, and when the war closed he left Kentucky. His death will revive recollections of those troublous times when death stalked through the land and the soil was stained with blood."

ONE of the worst governed cities in America, and one you hear the least about, is Philadelphia, says the Georgetown News-Democrat. They have rings and gangs there which can give Tammany Hall cards and spades and beat them. They have just completed a city hall and are now engaged in furnishing it. The carpets are to cost $6 per square yard; the chairs for the Councilmen $123 each; their desk $175 apiece. Even visitors in the gallery will tread upon carpets costing $6 a yard and the stenographers will each have a table and a chair, costing $285. His Nibs, the President of the Council, will be seated in a costly chair, placed on a rostrum costing $1,385.

THE trial of Mrs. Lizzie Duncan, of Carlisle, for sending an obscene letter through the mails, resulted in her acquittal in the U. S. Court at Covington. The principal witness against the accused was her cousin, Miss Virgie Campbell. She admitted writing the letter in question at the dictation of her cousin, who, it is claimed, can not read or write. The sending of the letter was the result of jealousy between Mrs. Duncan and Miss Bothman over Frank Duncan, who is now married to Miss Bothman's rival, Miss Bothman testified that she was married to Duncan, and had lived with him for some time previous to his marriage to Mrs. Duncan.

HOUSE PROCEEDINGS.

The Railroad Pooling Bill Occupies Almost the Entire Time.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—The house spent an hour yesterday in the consideration of the bill to protect forests reservations. The remainder of the day was occupied in the further discussion of the railroad pooling bill. The debate was participated in by Messrs. Bartlett of New York, Cockran of New York, and Wise of Virginia in support, and Messrs. Bryan of Nebraska and Northway of Ohio in opposition to the bill. The speech of Mr. Cockran was especially brilliant and for almost an hour held the house spellbound.

Debate under the five minute rule begins today and it is expected that a final vote will be reached on Tuesday of next week. The bulk of the opposition seems to be directed at the section of the bill which gives railroads the right to appeal to the courts from the decisions of the commission revoking pooling orders.

The senate was not in session.

A Physician in Trouble.

EAU CLAIRE, Wis., Dec. 8.—The case of Dr. Pickin, who is charged with abusing a girl named Mabel Briggs, after having subjected her to hypnotic influences, should have a further hearing, but the defendant is confined to his house with nervous prostration and heart trouble, and the hearing will, therefore, be probably continued. The community is considerably worked up over the affair, some believing the girl's statement, but the majority believing the attack upon the physician is malicious and the charge false. Several judges and other leading citizens are among the foremost champions of the accused man.

Against the Western Union.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 8.—The Western Union Telegraph company has appealed from the decision of the United States court for the southern district of California in the case of the Western Union against the Postal Telegraph company. The railway tried to grant its exclusive rights to the Western Union, but the court held that the Postal has equal rights.

Chinese Treaty Arrives.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—The long delayed Chinese treaty has at last arrived in Washington. It was delayed because the Chinese government, wishing to adopt every precaution, had dispatched the document to the United States by way of Europe instead of by the shorter Pacific route. Late yesterday afternoon Secretary Gresham and Mr. Yang Yu, the Chinese minister, exchanged the final ratifications and nothing now remains to be done but to promulgate the treaty, and it is expected that the proclamation will follow in a day or two.

The murderer was brought here and placed in jail yesterday.

Hi. Henry's Minstrels Monday Night.

Hi. Henry's celebrated minstrel company is way above the average. The special scene first part is gorgeous. The orchestra is perfection McNeish is the same old character, grown a little stouter, but still nimble and full of silence and grace. A novel interlude is a ten minute trip around the world, by means of a stereopticon, the orchestra playing descriptive music. The grand finale was something new and neat, introducing the band and Mr. Henry for cornet solo. The great cornetist was greeted with hearty applause as he stepped onto neatly dressed in uniform. His two solos were charmingly rendered and greatly admired. Then came the march of the gladiators, terminating with Frank McNeish's living pictures in imitation of classic marble statuary.—Grand Rapids Herald.

This excellent attraction will be at opera house next Monday night, and you don't want to miss it.

Schaefer Defeats Ives.

CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—Schaefer not only defeated Ives, but managed to gain 344 points, putting his total score at 2,375, while that of Ives is 3,000. Schaefer played a strong and brilliant game, making runs of 184, 217 and 194. Schaefer made an average of 62 14-15, surpassing his own average and coming close to the best average made by Ives in the New York tournament, which was 63 1-5. Ives' best runs were 182 and 184.

GERMANTOWN.

T. M. Dora is visiting in Indiana and Illinois. N. T. Ulry, who was stricken with apoplexy a few moments before his intended marriage, died on Thursday morning, aged sixty years. His funeral was held at Sharon Presbyterian Church on the following day, the pastor, Rev. Ramsey, officiating. He had been a faithful and efficient member of this church, and was one of the best and purest of men.

MAYSICK.

Miss Myra D. Myall left on the 6th instant to visit some of her friends in Carlisle, Millersburg and Paris.

John Manon has moved to the Benjamin Longnecker place on the Lexington pike half a mile above here.

Elder F. M. Tinder has returned from Poplar Plains and reports twenty-seven additions to the church there and deep interest manifested to the close.

Some of the country boys made things lively here the other night. They defied the officer who got a little worse of it in trying to do his duty.

Wood Browning has returned from Kansas with his lovely bride. He has been here spending a few days with his father and mother, Dr. L. Y. Browning and wife.

About four of the colored population were captured the other night shooting craps in Mrs. Anna Wilson's tobacco stripping house. One of them made good his escape—Charles Turner. The rest were taken to jail.

OWNEY'S THANKSGIVING DINNER.

Owney, the mail messengers' pet dog, took his Thanksgiving dinner at Providence, Rhode Island. He was filled so full of turkey and roast goose that he could hardly waddle. He left that place for New London, Connecticut. When he arrived there a juicy porter-house steak was laid before him but he was so full it is stated that he could do nothing more than sniff it and say, "Tain't no use boys. I'm stuffed."

KNOWLEDGE.

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.
